You do not have to declare your income received from carpooling trips if you provide not more than two social carpooling trips a day and the amount collected is solely for covering the costs incurred by you for the carpool trips. Please note that this tax treatment does not apply to a driver carrying on transport related activities as a trade, business or vocation (e.g. taxi-drivers, drivers providing chauffeured ride services). The income derived from carpooling by these drivers will be subject to tax.

Yes, you will need to opt-in to the Pre-filling of Income initiative with each operator separately if you would like to have your driving income from both operators pre-filled in your tax return. If you opt-in with one of the operators but not the other, only your driving income from this operator whom you have opted-in with will be submitted to IRAS and pre-filled. Hence, you will have to add on your income from the operator that you did not opt-in with into your Income Tax Return.
